AMY
SNIDER

Amy joins Her Song out of a shared passion to help women find healing from trauma and abuse, empowering them to live a life of freedom and independent from the cycle of abuse.

Amy has a BS degree in Psychology with a minor in Sociology, a Masters in Clinical Mental Health Counseling, and is working on completing her Doctorate in Community Care and Counseling, specializing in traumatology, from Liberty University. Amy has studied and served in the fields of mental health and behavioral health for 15 years, specializing in helping individuals suffering from severe mental illness, developmental disabilities and behavioral disorders, addiction and substance abuse, as well as domestic violence, sexual assault, human trafficking, childhood and adult trauma, and PTSD.

Serving in WV, Amy was featured by local newspapers, tv, and radio stations promoting her community outreach support groups, counseling programs, and initiatives to reach victims of domestic violence and sexual assault in the community, local colleges and universities. There, Amy participated in several community partnerships, and with her team at HOPE Inc. was recognized by the city council and county commission for work in serving victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and human trafficking.

Amy has a compassionate heart for those who have experienced trauma and supports them in their journey of growing into a life of healing and freedom.
